

Language Engineering for Wikipedia

Wikipedia is one of the most multilingual projects on the web today. In order to provide access to knowledge to everyone, Wikipedia is available in more than 300 languages. However, not all languages are equally supported online.

The Language Engineering team from the Wikimedia Foundation is building open source tools to make sure that users can read and type in all kinds of scripts, and allow content to be easily translated with no loss in quality. The Language team will present the tools that are already available to use for you, and the newest projects in which you can collaborate.